

Social Protection in Asian Countries

Satish Mishra

Strategic Asia

- There is no universally accepted definition of the terms social protection. In fact, it is sometimes used interchangeably with social security, social safety nets, and social assistance.
- Social protection mechanism function not only as a protective but also productive factors.
- Social protection may also contribute to economic growth by raising labor productivity and enhancing social stability.
- Overall objectives of social protection policies are to maximize social justice and human well being (direct and indirectly).

- Lack of social protection programmes in Asia-Pacific region
- Social protection schemes make individuals feel more secure and less inclined to increase their savings to protect themselves from possible income losses in times of crisis, contributing to domestic demand and macroeconomic stability.

- Most populous region
- Poverty rate high
- Unemployment and youth unemployment are major problem
- Growth of urbanization
- Inadequate public services and poor infrastructure
- Low public budget and government expenditure
- Social and political instability
- Vulnerable to environmental and food security problems

Food Price Challenge

Notes: Commodity food price index includes Cereal, Vegetable Oils, Meat, Seafood, Sugar, Bananas, and Oranges; commodity food and beverage price index includes all food commodities and coffee, tea and coca; rice price based on 5 percent broken milled white rice, Thailand nominal price quote, US$ per metric tonne.

- The 1945 Constitution of the Republic of Indonesia places high emphasis on social protection. Sub-section 2 of Article 34 states that the state shall develop a social security system for all citizens.
- According to Law No 40, 2004 about National System on Social Guarantee: every citizens should have their minimum life needs, benefits and social protection. The proposed types of benefits include:
  1. health benefits
  2. employment accident benefit
  3. old-age benefits
  4. pension benefits
  5. death benefits

- The social protection coverage of existing programs is low. It includes a minority of the Indonesian population, i.e. civil servants, armed forces, and part of the private sector employees; the existing social security programs cover less than 20% of the total population.
- In other hand, social protection in Indonesia not just based on worker benefits, but also via: food price control, health and education budget allocation, open labor opportunity, etc
